University makes play for Obama presidential library
Aamer Madhani, USA TODAY 7 a.m. EDT June 29, 2013

The University of Illinois at Chicago wants President Obama to bring his future presidential library to the city campus, USA TODAY has learned.

Bill Burton, a spokesman for UIC, confirmed to USA TODAY on Friday that Chancellor Paula Allen-Meares decided in May to form a university exploratory committee to look into bidding for the library and museum that will be built after Obama leaves office. Burton said he had no details about who is on the exploratory committee or what, if any, actions they have taken thus far in their pursuit.

Allen-Meares declined to comment.

So far Obama hasn't offered any clues as to where he would like to locate his library. Several sites have also been discussed.

But last week, Mayor Rahm Emanuel's office released a study that claims a campus would
