REPORTS

Hospital and Clinics Chief Executive Officer Report

Mr. Cepeda asked Mr. Michael B. Zenn, chief executive officer, University of Illinois Hospital and Clinics, and Dr. Susan Bleasdale, chief quality officer, University of Illinois Hospital and Clinics, to give the hospital and clinics chief executive officer report (materials on file with the secretary). Mr. Zenn reported on the transformation of food services and showed the ribbon cutting at the cafeteria. He said patients have reacted positively to these changes and told the committee that the new options for ordering food are more patient-friendly.

Dr. Bleasdale then gave an update on quality and safety and referred to the True North metrics. She discussed the key differences in structure as part of the Quality and Safety Transformation and said integrity and accountability are key aspects of the transformation. She presented a time line and said the immediate foundational work will support ongoing and longer-term initiatives.

Mr. Zenn provided a nursing services update and discussed staffing ratios, reporting that there were two reports of less than optimal nurse staffing and zero instances of less than optimal staffing that resulted in patient harm or a sentinel event. He also shared data regarding patient falls and falls with injuries, as well as hospital acquired pressure injuries.

Mr. Zenn then presented the financial results for Fiscal Year 2023 through November 2022 and highlighted the $5.1 million bottom line. He referred to increases in costs and noted the one-time costs associated with the opening of a new building. Mr. Zenn told the committee that discharges are down and that financial results are $4.9 million under budget. He reported on unrestricted days of cash on hand and unrestricted and internally restricted cash and investments, and he presented key comparison ratios for health system bond rating medians for A-rated hospitals. Mr. Zenn noted that the stresses on health care are not currently reflected and said that the rating agencies have assigned a negative outlook to health care nationally.

Chief Medical Officer Report

Mr. Cepeda asked Dr. Radosta to give the Chief Medical Officer Report (materials on file with the secretary). Dr. Radosta presented an organizational chart and described his role as chief medical officer, which he said shepherds communication with the Board and acts as a liaison for clinical care. He discussed provider engagement and recognized the top box doctor of the year, the physician of the year, and the advance practice practitioner of the year. Dr. Radosta reported on patient satisfaction, patient wellness, and patient engagement, and he highlighted the UI Health and Cook County Health Partnership for Pediatric Care, which aims to improve the quality of health care and increase access to subspecialty outpatient clinics while reducing costs. He concluded his remarks by discussing ongoing work to address inpatient capacity and outpatient access. Brief discussion followed, and Mr. Cepeda expressed appreciation for the patient utilization of MyChart. He and Dr. Bleasdale discussed the distribution of COVID-19 vaccines, and Dr. Bleasdale indicated that while demand has decreased, vaccines continue to be administered.

PRESENTATION

COVID-19 in Chicago: Impact of Multiple Traumas

Mr. Cepeda invited Dr. Giles to give a presentation entitled, “COVID-19 in Chicago: Impact of Multiple Traumas” (materials on file with the secretary). Dr. Barish gave an introduction for Dr. Giles, describing his background, experience, and expertise. Dr. Giles provided information about the School of Public Health, stating that it is ranked among the top 20 schools of public health in the country and the only school of public health in Illinois. He referred to the diversity of the student body and its focus on health, equity, diversity, and community engagement. Dr. Giles then described the field of public health and said it focuses on community, improving health, and preventing death. He then showed the COVID-19 case rate and the COVID-19 death rate according to the Chicago Health Atlas, highlighting the high rates of each on the west and south sides of Chicago. Dr. Giles showed similar data for the rate of coronary heart disease deaths and said the rates of death from diabetes, cancer, and other diseases follow a similar pattern. Next, he used the Chicago Health Atlas to show the high percentage of adults with low food access and in poverty living on the west and south sides of Chicago. He demonstrated that life expectancy at birth is lower on the west and south sides of the city. Dr. Giles presented the COVID-19 vaccination completion rate, which was lower on the west and south sides, and gave examples of community outreach to combat COVID-19. He emphasized that the use of hyperlocal data made it possible to focus efforts, establish partnerships, and provide education where it was most needed. Lastly, Dr. Giles reported on the UIC Public Health Scholar Program, which provides scholarships for Black, Latinx, Native American, Native Hawaiian, Pacific Islander, and American Indian students who are residents of the state of Illinois. He said scholarship recipients must be willing to conduct their applied practice experience in a medically underserved area of the state.

Mr. Cepeda thanked Dr. Giles for the presentation, and President Killeen asked what measures would be most effective in eliminating barriers and increasing life expectancy. Dr. Giles discussed the impact of education, increased access to care, and increased access to healthy food, and he said the Chicago Health Atlas helps focus their efforts. Additional discussion followed, and Dr. Giles said that while these issues are common in many cities, the availability of hyperlocal data through the Chicago Health Atlas is unique. Dr. Giles noted that clinics are mapped to areas of burden, and Mr. Cepeda commented on the impact of the 55th and Pulaski Health Collaborative. President Killeen stated that the narrative of the benefits of hyperlocal data and its impact should be documented and shared.
